The overall look of this project is great. Everything you need so far is on the collab site!

Here are some advices:

1. The Github has the function to save your old version of files by add branches. You can choose to put only the latest version files on the home page (main branch).
2. The PCB layout looks good, but it may be to big for your design. It would be better if you could design the wiring more compactly. Also, make sure the position of each component in the PCB you design is what you want in the final product.
